FCC - MAILROOM

Dear Mr. Powell —

He is discussing to hear how the FCC seems to be jumping on the corporate bandwagon pushed by the Tribune Co. and others for deregulation. The cartels that would result would wholly undermine free, exhaustive coverage that the public deserves in favor of the US Today bottom media candy. Is everything for sale? Just look at the breadth and depth of the BBC news — what Americans "digest" pales in comparison. The airwaves are public! A right disconnected to the current reality — perhaps by design. What is truly being done to protect the public interest? Does the public have access to this legislation being hashed out? I would like to read the fine print dear sir and would kindly appreciate a response from your office.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Jennifer L. Collins
